Brendan McReynolds brings a strong foundation in appellate and trial court experience to his practice, drawing on clerkships with multiple courts and hands-on advocacy work during law school.

Before joining Niles, Barton & Wilmer, LLP, Brendan served as a judicial law clerk at the Circuit Court for Harford County, Appellate Court of Maryland, and the Supreme Court of the Virgin Islands.

While in law school at the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law, Brendan was a student attorney in the Criminal Defense Clinic, where he represented a client in Baltimore City, and filed a motion for compassionate release in federal court. Brendan also served on the Moot Court Board and Maryland's Journal of Race, Religion, Gender & Class as an associate editor.
