

Estates & Trusts

In this unpredictable world, thinking about estate planning can be confusing and unsettling, especially when considering all the important issues that can affect your loved ones after you are gone. How will your assets be distributed? Who will care for your children? Who should make medical and financial decisions for you when you are incapable of doing so? What is the difference between a “will” and a “trust,” and which one is right for you?

Estate planning is not a one-size-fits-all approach. Niles Barton attorneys understand and appreciate the challenges of individualized planning and for decades have shepherded clients through this process. Our attorneys will perform a comprehensive analysis of your personal and financial profile to develop a sensible and cost-effective estate plan specifically tailored to your goals and wishes. As with every client, we will develop asset protection strategies and family safeguards to give you the peace of mind you deserve. Most importantly, we listen.

Related Services

Private Wealth
Probate Services
Trust & Fiduciary

News & Insights

- Potential Tax Changes in 2021 Loom Large for Estate Planning
- In spite of pandemic, Niles Barton continues growth and hiring
- During state of emergency, Maryland to permit virtual witnessing of wills and other estate documents
- Twelve Niles Barton Attorneys Recognized by Maryland Super Lawyers 2020